

Need More Bookshelves? Let Student Build Them

A new school year means more books — and probably more bookshelves.

Every semester students accumulate additional school books and supplies. Sufficient storage space for them can present a problem as the family grows—and grows up.

Today, it isn't a matter of pencil, notebooks, and slim readers. Modern students are likely to need thick reference books, giant atlases, drawing pads, and large portfolios. For science classes, they may require microscopes as well as magnifying glasses.

A CONVENIENT and practical way to provide plenty of shelves and storage space is to build them yourself with sturdy, easy-to-work hard-board.

If students in your house have a study corner, you can install perforated hard-board paneling. Brackets fitted into the perforations hold shelves of different heights and depths to accommodate either standard or jumbo-sized texts. With hooks attached, the panels also hold an assortment of sports items, clothes and favorite mementoes. Or, they can be used as a bulletin board for notes, class schedules, maps and photos. Nothing gets lost, and the corner stays neat.

WOOD-GRAINED hard-board which is tempered for strength supports bracketed shelves with ease. It is also extremely attractive and takes hard wear without denting, scratching or scuffing. Those with a plastic finish can be sponged clean.

An especially attractive and practical idea is to combine or alternate perforated and woodgrained panels, or to use the perforated style on the upper half of the wall and the woodgrained below as wainscoting.

Both types come in light weight 4-by-8-foot panels that can be worked with ordinary handyman's tools. Standard shelf sizes are also available. The panels are easily nailed to an existing wall surface, or applied with a special adhesive.

Extension To Offer New Class

A special series of four Saturday lecture-workshops on new research findings in the teaching of English in junior and senior high schools will be offered by the University of California Extension, Oct. 15 through Nov. 5, at Wilson High School in Long Beach.

Designed for teachers and other interested persons, the course will be conducted by William Rosch, supervisor of secondary English curriculum for the Los Angeles City Schools.

The program is offered optionally as a three unit credit course. Further information may be obtained from the University of California Extension office at North High School, 3620 W. 182nd St.

Top Industry Men to Meet At El Camino South High Open House Scheduled

More than 100 top representatives from various area industries will assemble at El Camino College on Wednesday, Oct. 12, to participate in a general advisory committee meeting which will be held in the campus center at 6 p.m., according to Dr. G. Theodore Elmgren Jr., coordinator of industry and technology.

The meeting is designed to give industrial leaders and experts attending an opportunity to advise ECC instructors and administrators concerning the college's program of instruction in industry and technology.

THIS GENERAL committee is composed of 16 occupational field committees which meet individually with the division of industry and technology throughout the school year. These committees will be meeting as a group for the first time and will have the opportunity of planning their own agenda for subsequent advisory meetings later in the year.

Some of the items to be discussed include revision of courses and course content, development of new curriculum, suitability and availability of necessary equipment students and recommendation of possible instructional personnel.

"GREAT BENEFITS are derived from the advice obtained from these experts in our community who come at the request of Dr. Stuart E. Marsee, president of El Camino College, and the division of industry and technology," stated Dr. Elmgren.

Merl F. Sloan, vice president of the student personnel at El Camino College, will talk to the group regarding the history, development and future of the college.

South High's annual "Back to School" night for parents will be held Wednesday, Oct. 12, according to Dr. John Lucas, principal.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Parrino and William Unger of the school's curriculum office, will give parents an opportunity to meet the teachers and view equipment and facilities at South High.

The event is scheduled from 7:30 until 10:30 p.m. and will begin with a brief general meeting in the gymnasium.

Parents will follow the schedules of their sons and daughters, spending about 15 minutes in each class.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the program by the South High PTA.

Local Banker Sets Record

Banker Tony Squillace convinced 1,525 people "to go" BankAmericard during a four month period and was titled "one of the best salesmen in South Los Angeles."

Manager of Bank of America's Lomita-South Torrance branch, Squillace's selling efforts were part of a bank employe program to make the bank's credit card and other services available to a larger number of Californians.

The program resulted in 500,000 additional Californians becoming BankAmericard holders and establishing a new record of 1,765,000 state card holders.

THIS IS NO WAY TO MAKE MONEY IN YOUR SPARE TIME

It is a way, though, for you to help young men make their first important steps as citizens.

And the Scouts need your help.

As a leader of Cub Scouts, ages 8 to 11. Of Boy Scouts, age 11 and older. Of Explorers 14 and up.

Because your interest and your experience can keep America's most important youth movement on the move.

There's a lot more to it, so give us a call.

You may not get rich. But you could get awfully satisfied.
